PRINCIPLES OF LIFELONG KNOWLEDGE LEARNING

To enrich any person's Knowledge, we have Two Fundamental Methods Classroom Tutorial Academic Learning, and Vocational Lifelong Hands-on Learning. The majority of people strive to enrich their respective Knowledge through Classroom Tutorial Learning and three Hours Examinations, assessments, and Verification for respected Academic Qualifications. But some are not privileged to take that path of Learning, but they opt out for Vocational Hands-on Lifelong Learning. As a Tradition majority of us accepted Traditional Learning as Highly Creditworthy and Vocational Learning as the Second Grade. This appreciation was the stumbling block for Vocational Learners for their legitimate Career Development and due respect and remuneration. But in early 1920, some changes start to develop regarding considering Vocational Hands Learning, do enrich a person's knowledge, and should be given due recognition and acceptance. UKCCCL's Founder Professor Emeritus Ralph Thomas did start to research this in 1996 and came up with his Doctoral Thesis in the year 2003 and was able to implement his vision and mission by forming UK Commission for Consistent Learning (UKCCCL) and Distance Self Work Learning Non- Formal European Continental University (ECU) 2005. The below information is some of his research, which can enlighten for anyone to understand the UKCCCL vision and mission. UK-CCL's unique concept with the Vision and Mission is to convert every Non-Academic Working individual by assisting them to elevate their status to Acceptable Professional Status by taking into consideration of their Lifelong Hands-on Experiences as the Compulsory Learning Path to earn a Reputable and Remarkable Occupational Lifelong Knowledge Learning Qualifications.

The two dedicated schemes are known as the Accreditation for Career Progress Development (ACPD) and Affirmation for Prior Experience and Learning (APEL). Every applicant should earn their respective Knowledge Qualification by providing legally certified supporting documents to confirm their Ability of Knowledge.
